This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

THE third edition of Population and Its Distribution is based on the 1920 Census of the Population of the United States.

The Census authorities were frequently consulted and the Company wishes to express its appreciation for their help and co-operation and especially to acknowledge its indebtedness to Mr. William C. Hunt, Chief Statistician for Population, for his generous interest in the work.

The Bureau of the Census began to release the first city counts in April, 1920, and although it did the work in record time, the last of the data needed for this edition was not received until June, 1921. In compiling the material, we were governed in all instances by the rulings of the Bureau of the Census. Of particular importance is the Census definition of urban population; defined as "that residing in cities and other incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more." However, "in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire (except in two instances) it is not the practice, as in other states, to have municipal incorporations, such as villages, within the limits of the town, and no town becomes a city until its population is much in excess of 2,500. For this reason it has been necessary to include in the urban territory of these states not only the population of cities but that of all towns having over 2,500 inhabitants. The 'urban' area in each of these three states includes, therefore, some population which in other states would be classed as 'rural' but it is not thought that the proportion of urban population is greatly increased thereby."

In Maine and Connecticut there are a considerable number of unincorporated places with a population of 2,500 or more. For this reason they are listed separately for the convenience of those desirous of making a detailed study of these states. In the tables giving group totals which follow the census procedure, the totals for these places are included in the totals for the rural population of each state, since although they do have a population of 2,500 or more they are not incorporated. In New Hampshire on account of the great number of unincorporated places under 2,500 they have been listed separately.

State totals for the number of families are estimates. They were obtained by dividing the total state population by 4.5, the average number of persons to a family in the United States in 1910. The Census authorities, when consulted, advised the use of this figure although they thought it a little high as the average number of persons to a family has been steadily decreasing since 1890.

Reference is made throughout the book to cities "falling within adjacent territory of" other cities, e.g., "Lynn, Massachusetts falling within the adjacent territory of Boston, Massachusetts," etc. These selections are based on the 1910 census as similar data for 1920 are not yet available.

Miscellaneous state data are given on the pages with the individual state maps, as well as summarized at the close of the state tables. These figures, with the exception of those for autos and trucks, electric passenger cars, electrically wired houses, and central power stations, are official government figures, and in each case include a statement of sources. These data have been collected at irregular intervals but are the latest available at this time.

An explanation regarding the statistics on the distribution of wholesale and retail dealers throughout the United States is given on page 304 immediately preceding the tables.

Whether a concern sells exclusive dealers or all dealers, direct or through the jobber, it continually faces the problem of more thorough working or greater intensity of effort.

In some instances this work can be done most effectively by salesmen, in some by advertising and in others by a combination of both.

Whatever the method of selling, the basis for adequate work is the knowledge of markets as constituted by the distribution of population.

Under present conditions of greater sales resistance, the increase in results secured from operating with a full vision of all the facts will constitute in many instances the margin between work done at a profit or at a loss.

Population and Its Distribution in its two earlier editions has been found a convenient and necessary tool by hundreds of corporations.

The third edition gives the 1920 census figures just available. In addition to listing all towns in the United States down to 500 inhabitants with their counties, we have added an outline map of each state showing the location of its principal centers. The trade information has been extended to include thirty separate classifications of dealers, wholesale and retail, in the leading trades. These classifications give the number of dealers in each city of 50,000 and over, as well as by states.

Corporation and personal income and tax returns for 1918, subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan, and the number of telephones, farms, post offices, central power stations, automobiles and trucks registered, and the miles of railroads, rural roads, improved roads, etc., are given by states.

This book furnishes the facts which the manufacturer needs for a closer analysis of markets and we believe that the additions we have made will make it even more useful than the former editions.

DISTRIBUTION OF RETAIL AND WHOLESALE DEALERS IN THE UNITED STATES

THE United States government furnishes no statistics relating to the distribution of wholesale and retail dealers throughout the country. In order to obtain data for the following tabulations a systematic investigation of sources was necessary.

The sources from which final selection for these tables were made are too numerous to list in detail. They include official trade directories, mercantile agency rating books, city and telephone directories, Dun and Bradstreet, trade and other magazines, local newspapers, and city, state and national trade organizations. In a few instances state totals could only be obtained through addressing companies, but in the main, the counts were either made or checked by the J. Walter Thompson Company.

In cases where two or more figures were available from different sources for the same trade, discrepancies were carefully analyzed before a selection was finally made.

These figures are not official. The Company cannot guarantee their absolute accuracy, but it believes them to be sufficiently accurate to serve as a reliable index to the number of dealers in the trades specified.

To have obtained even these figures would have been impossible without the generous assistance of many persons and organizations.

Especial thanks are due to officials of local, state and national trade associations and chambers of commerce and to the editors of trade directories, trade magazines and local newspapers. The J. Walter Thompson Company takes pleasure in acknowledging their contribution.
